LOST TRIBE LOCATED

INDIANS FOUND HIDDEN IN THE CANADIAN ROCKIES.

Discovered by Surveying Party—Pass Time in the Chase of Big Game and in Raising Horses.

Spokane, Wash.—James M. Cornish, head of a surveying party working in the wilderness of the Yellowhead pass in the Canadian Rockies, brings to Spokane a story of the discovery of more than 300 families of Indians hidden miles from civilization in the northern wilds. They appear to be prosperous and contented, passing most of their time in the chase of big game and breeding horses.

"Their story of settling in Yellowhead pass is romantic," Mr. Cornish said, "reading more like a chapter recorded by Fenimore Cooper than a historical fact. The Indians claim to be descendants from the once powerful Iroquois nation, which wrought so much havoc in the eighteenth century. Generations ago, they say, they lived in Illinois, but in the Blackhawk uprising they were driven from the states, and for safety were forced to flee to the northwest.

"They traveled many months through strange lands and territories ruled by savage Indian tribes. They sought shelter with the Blood, Blackfoot, Cree and Beaver Indians, but were treated like outcasts and finally driven farther westward.

"From camp to camp they journeyed, until they struck the Nez Perce country in northern Idaho, going thence to Spokane and Yakima settlements, but they were not allowed to remain. From the Yakima valley they went into the Colville district, where half their number were killed in combat with the Colvilles and Coeur d'Alenes.

"Finally, one of their chiefs told me, they settled in the Rocky mountains at the mouth of Yellowhead pass, and, as no one appeared to molest them, they remained. For a time they traded with the Hudson Bay people, but for more than 100 years they have not been in communication with either factors or traders. Whether this is because of some real or fancied wrong I was not able to learn, but I did note a peculiar turn of the lip when the chief talked about his forebears' dealings with the company."

Mr. Cornish says many of the horses found in the pass are high bred and fleet of foot. The men devote much of their time to tribal sports, such as games between boys, foot racing and ball playing, the last named pastime being a cross between lacrosse and baseball, the bat being similar to that used by cricketers, with a net on the end. The Indians appeared so friendly to Mr. Cornish and his party and entertained them at potlatch during their stay.

FIND EVERYTHING BUT MEAT.

Bristles, Cereals, Skin and Glands Used in Canned Goods.

Albany, N. Y.—State Health Commissioner Porter announced in his official bulletin for May that a chemical analysis of 154 samples of so-called roasts, corned, dried and potted beef, deviled ham and other canned meats shows the presence in these articles of boron preservative and a considerable quantity of indigestible matter, such as pigs' bristles, hairs, skin and glands. Cereal is also used to fill up the cans. Dr. Porter says:

"The use of any preservative in a food to be inclosed in a can which can be satisfactorily sterilized by the use of heat and sealed hermetically indicates that the materials to be placed in the can were in such state or were kept under such conditions as to lead the canner to believe that they required the use of a preservative for the prevention of decomposition until they could be safely canned."

Encysted embryos of trichina spirals were found in several sections of contents of a sample of potted ham. The report on luncheon meat says:

"Two samples of this product bore labels with the following statement: 'Fine old English luncheon meat as prepared at Haddon Hall in the reign of Queen Elizabeth.'

"The contents of the two samples are similar in appearance, both consist of large amounts of fibrous tissues and fat with scattered pieces of skin, glands, hair and little muscular tissue."

Of deviled chicken from one firm, advertised as "selected chickens, finest quality," the chemist says the digestion test showed 11 per cent. of insoluble residue.

One sample of veal loaf had a boron preservative and consisted chiefly of cereal and fatty and fibrous tissues with a few muscle fibers.

Traveling Kitchen for Army.
Vienna.—The Austrian army department has been experimenting with an invention of Dr. Kuhn, consisting of a traveling kitchen. It is furnished with two huge kettles, which, according to recent experiments, can furnish food to 850 persons, or about 350 pounds of cooked meat, besides the soup and the vegetables. It has been found possible through hermetical sealing systems to preserve the food warm for 30 hours.

Rich Have Right to Be Idle.
Wellesley, Mass.—Students of Wellesley, decided, after a debate, that the wealthy classes have a right to be idle.

WORLD'S FAMOUS CURIOSITY.

Man Who Is Still Living with Only Half of His Brain.

Kansas City, Mo.—George L. Chapman, a world-famous curiosity among medical men, was exhibited to the classes of the Kansas Medical college recently. He is a wonderful example of a tradition current among medical doctors that the average person has a large surplusage of brains.

As the result of a gunshot wound received when he was a boy and the subsequent surgical operation which followed Chapman had a teaspoonful, or to reduce the quantity to more exact terms, six ounces—of his brain removed when he was 13 years old.

Instead of dying, as everything indicated he would, Chapman lingered between life and death. His head was almost frozen in an effort to keep the temperature down. Part of the right ear was actually frozen off in this manner. But after spending two years in bed, not being able to stand as a result of the injury, he finally became able to get around.

"A huge scar remains where the surgeons removed the skull and brain from Chapman's head. The brain substance here lies beneath a single thickness of skin and it is possible to observe the pulsation of the cerebral blood vessels by watching the bare skin which covers the unprotected brain."

In sleeping if he lies on the right side of his head it fills with blood, practically drowning the brain. He is then completely paralyzed and helpless until some one turns him over, when his brain drains and resumes its functions.

Chapman makes his living by traveling about and exhibiting himself to medical colleges, taking up a collection at each place. He is in great demand as an illustration of the relations between the hemispheres of the brain and the muscles of the body. He has exhibited himself all over this country and in Europe and Canada.

CALLS METHUSELAH NOT SO OLD

Prof. Starr Thinks He Lived No Longer Than Fernando Jones.

Chicago.—Prof. Frederick Starr is of the opinion that Fernando Jones is older than Methuselah.

Not that he believes the oldest inhabitant to be more than 900 years old—oh, no! But he refuses to accept the word of Holy Writ in regard to the age of the traditionally oldest man, and asserts that his life probably was shorter than the lives of modern and up-to-date people, who rarely pass the century mark.

This shattering of another idol was essayed by Prof. Starr while holding forth to his class in anthropology at the University of Chicago. Wishing to test his students' fund of general information, he suddenly proposed the question:

"How old was Methuselah?" A great, blank silence prevailed among the 60 embryo scholars, as the professor gloated over their confusion.

Then he condescended to inform them that Methuselah was 969 years old, and that they had better go home and read their Bibles.

"But," he continued, "it is not at all probable that Methuselah ever lived to such an extreme old age. It is as doubtful if Saul, David and Solomon ever reigned 40 years each, as the Bible declares. Men lived no longer in biblical times than they do today. In fact, I believe the average longevity is higher to-day than it ever has been in the history of the human race."

And then, after ruining poor old Methuselah's reputation, Prof. Starr turned to a discussion of the insanities of the Iroquois verb.
